

Teachers Ask New Salary Minimums, Increased State Aid

Representatives Tell State Group Situation Is 'Desperate' for Pedagogues; Dr. Ward Is Keynote at Hearing

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 16 (AP)—The New York State Teachers' Education Committee today faced plenty of reading to do after eight hours of listening to pleas for higher teachers' salaries and more state aid to schools.

Describing the situation as "desperate," teachers' representatives asked yesterday for an immediate allocation of $100,000,000 from the state's general fund. They also asked that the $126,000,000 annual state aid be doubled.

With thousands of words and mountains of manuscripts, 130 spokesmen virtually swamped the opposition at a public hearing in the Assembly chamber.

They suggested state-mandated minimum salaries of $2,700 in New York city and $2,400 in upstate communities; a long-term state aid program; safeguards preventing communities from using state education funds for other than schools and relief for other than schools in cities held to a two per cent tax limit.

Jack Saroff of Amsterdam, N. Y., wound up the hearing with a speech which several committee members privately described "as the best of the day."

Saroff, a physics teacher in Wilbur H. Lynch High School, told of his 13 years' experience, his master's degree, and a take home salary of $47.63 a week.

"That doesn't provide me with the bare essentials," he said. "Perhaps you are asking yourselves how I do manage to get along. I'll tell you. I sell shoes on Friday and Saturday nights. On Monday and Tuesday nights I teach night school."

Benjamin F. Feinberg, Senate majority leader, set forth the special committee's "interest both in the present emergency situation and in the long-term development of education."

Dr. Charles C. Ward, Plattsburgh, president of the New York State Teachers Association, sounded the keynote in outlining what he described as a critical teacher shortage, the need for larger salaries to keep old teachers and attract newcomers, and the necessity for a long-term state aid program "storing up in fat years for the lean years."

Ward said the average salary upstate was $2,035, and that 50

New Storm Moves Along the Rockies

Hamper Rescue Efforts of Marooned Families in Colorado

Denver, Nov. 16 (AP)—A new storm swept south along the Rockies today, blanketing Montana and Wyoming with snow and hampering rescue efforts in eastern Colorado where many families still are marooned and much livestock is weakened by two weeks without food.

The Weather Bureau said the snow would be light, but predicted strong winds that would drift the snow already on the ground, and low temperatures which cattlemen said would cause heavy livestock loss. The storm centered along the eastern slope of the mountains. It came on the heels of the third storm to strike Colorado within two weeks, bringing death to 18 persons.

Snow and wind, originating from a cold air mass that came out of the west, drove the blizzard-swept plains another lashing yesterday, wiping out the gains made at clearing roads and virtually halting Red Cross-army relief operations from Rush, 40 miles east of Colorado Springs.

Crews worked a week opening a 36-mile road from Hugo to Karval to have new drifts close to within 30 minutes after they were through.

Cattlemen who could get their livestock to railroads rushed it to markets, but thousands of head of cattle remained without food since the blizzard started two weeks ago.

With many families not heard from for two weeks, relief workers feared further deaths like that of Mrs. Kate (Grandma) Taylor, 87. The aged woman died of exposure 30 minutes after her daughter reached her isolated home near Karval where she spent four days alone, burning furniture and rugs when unable to reach coal buried under the snow.

Army weasels making mercy missions from Rush were slowed to three miles an hour and planes which have been dropping food packages to humans and hay to livestock were grounded at Colorado Springs where Robert W. White, Red Cross disaster representative, arrived from St. Louis to direct operations.

Bus travel was halted and traffic moved at a snail's pace over highways as maintenance crews worked to keep the main arteries open.

Notices Are Given

New York, Nov. 16 (AP)—Pan American World Airlines has given dismissal notices to about 25 per cent of the 3,000 employees of its Atlantic Division in a move that an airline spokesman attributed particularly to "inroads made on air passenger traffic by transatlantic steamships. The notices, given yesterday, are effective January 30."

Laboratory Asks Fund Of $15,000

Addition of Sanitary Chemistry Division and Extra Work Are Cited for Supervisors

Reports Are Given Ellenville Hospital Asks $2,500 Be Minimum From Board

Annual reports from various organizations and officials of the county were received Friday evening at an adjourned meeting of the Board of Supervisors. Among them was the report of the director of the City of Kingston Laboratory and a request that the annual contribution from the Board be increased from $12,000 to $15,000 because of additional work which will be done and the increased cost due to the establishment of a Sanitary Chemistry Department of milk, water and other examinations.

A request was also received from the Veterans Memorial Hospital at Ellenville for the usual $2,500 contribution but the communication from Robert V. Stapleton, president of the Board of Managers, suggested that this be the "minimum." Supervisor Kelb speaking to the communication stated that the hospital served the entire southern Ulster territory, never turned away anyone in need and while the former contributions had been appreciated, it would be splendid if the Board of Supervisors could increase the amount to $3,000 this year. The hospital managers are putting on a drive to raise funds to erect a new 40 bed wing and already $60,000 had been raised toward the work.

The ghost of winter also made its appearance when it was moved that $40,000 be transferred from the Road Fund and credited to the snow removal fund. Carried.

A motion that $50,000 be raised on the county for the County Road Fund to match that sum which is contributed by the state under the Lowman Act went over until next session under the rule.

Inspection Is Asked

An invitation was received from the Board of Managers of the Tuberculosis Hospital, inviting the members of the Board to make its annual inspection of the hospital on December 4.

In the annual report of Dr. J. S. Taylor, director of the laboratory, he called attention to the great increase in work done at the laboratory and stated that the next year it was intended to establish a Sanitary Chemistry Department which would be in charge of a sanitary chemist and bacteriologist. A room in the present building is available but the cost of equipment and operation for the year would be approximately $15,000. In asking that the county increase its contribution from $12,000 to $15,000 for next year, Dr. Taylor called attention to the fact that the county is reimbursed one half by the state for money which it appropriates and therefore the $3,000 increase would cost the taxpayers only a net of $1,500. The request was referred to the committee on appropriations.

The committee on printing, highways, reported bills in the sum of $815.25 to be correct and just claims and recommended that the amount be allowed. It was

Administration Seeks to Hold 40,000 Miners to Contract Declared Binding; Lewis May Face Prosecution Under Law

C.I.O. Takes Move To Control Leftists In Various Councils

Sponsorship of Move Is Taken by Murray, Who, Rumor Says, Will Remain Leader

Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 16 (AP)—The C.I.O. has taken action to control any left wing activities in its state and city councils, and C.I.O. leaders today faced next week's convention with less tension in the air.

They had assurance that at least one trouble spot was smoothed over and disposed of.

They were convinced that Philip Murray now intends to remain president despite rumors to the contrary.

Murray himself sponsored yesterday's action by the C.I.O. Executive Board. New rules were adopted requiring the 286 city and state councils to "confine their activities and statements to issues of local and state concern and to matters of general policy that have been passed upon by the national C.I.O."

Murray said to reporters that "strangers" using "destructive propaganda" have often moved into these councils.

From now on, the C.I.O. president has authority to institute proceedings against a council or any of its officers.

The Executive Board has authority to suspend after a hearing, a council or an officer of a council. The president has authority to seize all property of any accused council, pending a hearing.

The proposal was especially aimed at the heads of outcast anti-Communists like James Carey, C.I.O. secretary-treasurer; Emil Rieve, president of the textile workers; and John Green, president of the shipbuilding workers.

But Murray announced that the action was by unanimous vote. The Board has 51 members and nearly all of them were present. This unanimity means that under the leadership of Murray, bitterly-fighting political factions have composed their differences for the sake of a united C.I.O. front at a time of grave economic problems.

It means, too, that the argument over city and state councils—a sore spot—is not likely to flare on the floor of the convention which starts Monday. The Executive Board's action was final.

Murray, in a news conference, smilingly refused to confirm the well understood fact that the action was aimed at alleged left wing activities in some of the big cities. Nor would he name the cities which had especially worried him.

McEntee's 13th Report

In submitting his annual report to the Board of Supervisors Friday evening County Treasurer Albert Cashdollar called attention of the members to the fact that the statistical report has been prepared by Deputy Clerk Dwight McEntee and that the report was the 13th annual report which had been prepared by Mr. McEntee.

F. J. Burns Rites To Be Held Monday At Albany Church

Police Justice Killed Here in Crash Was Popular Figure at State Capital

Funeral services for Police Justice Francis J. Burns, 44, of Albany, who was killed instantly in a collision between his car and a tractor-trailer on the 9-W bypass early Thursday morning, will be conducted Monday.

Louis Barbick, 27, driver of the truck that burned following the crash, is in the Kingston Hospital. Kingston authorities said Barbick spent a comfortable night. The X-rays taken yesterday revealed internal injuries.

Sheriff George C. Smith said Barbick told him that he was on his own side of the road proceeding north at a moderate rate of speed when the accident occurred.

Coroner J. Gregory Nealon, of Albany county, said last night that the funeral would be Monday at 9:15 a. m. from the residence, 5 Sprague street, and from St. Vincent de Paul's Church at 10:30 a. m., where a solemn requiem high Mass will be sung. Burial will be in St. Agnes cemetery.

The honorary bearers are expected to include prominent Albanyans in public and civic affairs.

Judge Burns is survived by his widow, the former Helen K. Garry; two children, Garry and Deborah Ann Burns; and a

Red Concessions May Crack Long Trieste Deadlock

Molotov Shows Signs of Making Effort to Meet Stand on Trieste Police

New York, Nov. 16 (AP)—Several concessions by Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov prompted Big Four diplomats today to make guarded assertions that the foreign ministers council was at the point of breaking its months old deadlock over Trieste.

In a three-hour informal debate among the big four foreign ministers last night, Molotov showed signs, according to persons in the meeting, of making a serious effort to meet American, British and French insistence on putting Trieste police under control of the United Nations Security Council.

Secretary of State James F. Byrnes and British Foreign Minister Bevin declared repeatedly that only by having a police force independent of the locally elected government could the United Nations be sure of protecting the independence of Trieste and the rights of its two nationalities—Italian and Yugoslav.

Byrnes declared the whole issue—which is the great block in the way of an Italian peace treaty—is the question of who is to hire and fire the police force.

Molotov, responding to proposals by Deputy French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve De Murville, agreed:

That the proposed governor of Trieste—a direct agent of the security council—should have the right to appoint the police chief upon the recommendation of the local council of government.

That he had no objection to having the police chief direct the recruiting of the police force.

That the governor should have a veto over administrative as well as legislative actions of the local government—another way of recognizing that he should have actual supreme power.

Molotov also agreed at another point in the discussion that the police chief should be subordinate to the governor in an emergency affecting the independence of the Trieste territory and that the governor would decide when emergency action was necessary.

The meeting last night broke up without any formal agreement on anything despite the informal acquiescence expressed by Molotov on points raised by Couve De Murville.

Diplomats familiar with the course of the discussion, however, said that it represented considerable progress over previous debates on the same subject and that the session (at 4 p. m. E.S.T. today) might produce a real break.

Food to Go to Alaska

Edmonton, Alta., Nov. 16 (AP)—W. J. Eveleigh of the Alaska Highway Control said last night that 21 trucks would leave Seattle, Wash., November 19 loaded with supplies to ease the food shortage in Alaska. A similar number will leave about November 25, he said.

Supply for 37 Days

Underlining the gravity of the situation, the solid fuels administration said the nation has only a 37-day supply of fuel on hand, compared with the 42-day supply just before last spring's crippling two-month winter.

A proposal by Krug that Lewis negotiate with the mine operators for 60 days for a contract under which the diggings could go back to private operation, meanwhile keeping the miners on their jobs, fell on deaf ears.

So did two appeals for him to reconsider—the first by President Truman in a public statement emphasizing "the desire of 140,000,000 Americans for industrial peace," and the second by Krug in a formal letter to Lewis.

K. M. C. Adams, editor of the U.M.W. journal charged that "forces of intrigue" are seeking to stall "until such a time and under such conditions as would stage a blowup during the first days of the new Congress."

"The operators, along with other business and political interests, have planned to make the coal-wage issue the basis for pressing anti-labor legislation and the repeal of all existing protective labor laws, Adams said in an editorial.

Krug's letter to the miner's chief last night, quoting a formal opinion from the attorney general, said "you are without power to terminate this contract with the government."

Lewis Stands Firm

Lewis stood by his contention that the phrasing of the contract permitted him to call it off on due notice. As for the proposal to negotiate with the operators, he already had told Krug:

"The mine workers do not propose to deal with parties who have no status under that contract. We do not propose to be driven like dumb beasts to the slaughter of slow strangulation envisioned by your proposal and the operators' well-known and long used tactics of evasion and delay."

"We call upon you to honor your contract."

The government's viewpoint in declining to talk new wage-hour terms with Lewis was explained by Mr. Truman in his statement, which said:

"The abandonment of wage and price controls requires the immediate resumption of normal collective bargaining between management and labor without government substitution for either party."

Strike Appears Certain

A strike four days hence appeared certain unless:

Lewis accepts Krug's proposal for the 60-day truce, which the President called "eminently fair to both mine workers and operators."

Krug and the government back down and give Lewis a new contract.

This Is How Kingston's Proposed New Tumor Clinic Will Appear

Kingston, one of the leading municipalities in the United States as regards public health, is contemplating a new Tumor Clinic. The new building will be erected adjoining the already-famous Kingston Laboratory, built by the administration of former Mayor C. J. Heiselman, and it will be situated in the open court between the City Hall and the laboratory. The rear of the clinic will face Broadway, while the front will face Hasbrouck avenue at the east. The photograph, made from the architect's sketch, gives an idea how the Tumor Clinic will appear when completed.

moved that this sum be levied. Over.

The committee on highway accounts also reported bills amounting to $4,614.24. It was moved that this sum be levied. Over.

The report of Commissioner of Jurors Frank J. McCord was received. He reported that since the system had been in effect there had been a marked improvement in the jury system, also there had been an apparent saving of money. In 1945 prior to the commission system being in effect 64 jurors had been called and 41 talesmen. In 1946 under the commission system only 379 jurors had been called from the regular list and no talesmen. The type of jury he said was improved. In 1945 there had been called 180 grand jurors and in 1946 only 129 had been called. He made a request for $100 for office expenses for the coming year. Referred to committee on appropriations.

Public Health Report

A report of the Committee on Public Health was also received. This report showed the progress which has been made in public health during the past year in spite of the difficulty to secure needed qualified public health nurses. There are now nine public health nurses employed, three of them being nurses who meet the full requirements for public health work. In addition there were three additional public health nurses assigned to the county for the summer months. The report stated there were some 2,000 visits to children during the year by the nurses to homes. There were 592 maternity visits and some 500 visits made to homes where tuberculosis cases were known. X-ray films were also held for tuberculosis cases. Seventy-six child health conferences were held and the dental program was expanded. The orthopedic clinic work was increased. Attention was called to the work in communicable disease prevention and also the great amount of bedside nursing which is given by the nurses.

Resolution were offered for disbursement of the four supervisory districts for the increased salary of the school superintendents as follows: First district, $7,000; second district, $7,000; third district, $7,000; fourth district, $6,500. Over.

3,500 Costly Cases Of American Blood Plasma Recovered

on a tip obtained at the first warehouse.

Donald B. Davis, F.L.C. director in Shanghai, said the plasma was included in the uninvited sale of 10,000 tons of medical supplies to a Chinese purchaser at $165 a ton.

Each case of plasma contained 12 packages of 500 cc each.

Ready Sale in Shanghai

The plasma found a ready sale in Shanghai when advertised in Chinese newspapers as a quick health tonic. It was immediately taken up by the Chinese government and led to the discovery that it had been included erroneously in the bulk sale of Navy medical supplies to a Chinese dealer. A Navy spokesman explained that two typhoons disrupted operations at Okinawa so that the stockpile was not inventoried and the plasma was not discovered in it.

James P. Moody, director of the American Red Cross in China, expressed "extreme concern that blood donated by Americans for wounded servicemen should be on sale."

Discovery of the 2,000 cases was made by Fred Hampson, Shanghai bureau chief of the Associated Press, and Spencer Moosa, AP correspondent here, on a tip from the Soviet manager of a warehousing firm. They confirmed his tip that trucks of a Chinese concern were preparing to load the plasma, then notified F.L.C. Red Cross and U. S. Navy officials.

Trucks Speed Away

When Donald Davis and other F.L.C. officials arrived at the warehouse, the trucks sped away. Davis photographed them in flight.

He said that had they succeeded in carrying away the plasma, it would probably never could have been recovered.

Early in October, the original Chinese purchaser, Power 11

Khoong, promised to recover the plasma but F.L.C. officials said he had not. Meantime, the plasma continued to find its way into the retail market.

Rear Adm. Willard A. Kitts, senior U. S. naval officer in Shanghai, was among the officials who helped recover the plasma today.

Car of Dr. Goldfarb

In Collision Friday

Friday afternoon about 4:30 o'clock the Buick sedan of Dr. Saul Goldfarb of 277 Fair street, and an International tractor-trailer owned by the Mid-States Freight Lines of Chicago were involved in an accident at West Park. Both cars were traveling south at the time, Trooper Austin reported. He said that the truck, operated by Dominick Birodo of Chicago passed the passenger car on the right and the left wheel of the trailer struck the right of the Goldfarb car. There were no injuries.

Ship Is Under Tow

Today, Nov. 16 (AP)—The cruiser Chicago today took the typhoon-damaged and nearly flooded army concrete ship, Edwin C. Echels, under tow and proceeded toward Yokohama, about 200 miles distant. The Echels' rudder was disabled last week and 43 of her 45 crewmen were transferred to the San Francisco bound transport, Trade Wind.

Traffic Normal

Newark, N. J., Nov. 16 (AP)—Traffic was normal today after five cars and the engine of the Pennsylvania railroad's eastbound passenger train, The Jeffersonian, were derailed in the downtown section. No one was injured. Cause of the derailment was not determined, railroad officials reported. The mishap occurred last night around 10:30 when the coal tender overturned.

Woodstock Site Offered Students

pressed for establishment of a branch of the school in Woodstock.

The meeting held Thursday night at the Community School in Woodstock was highly successful and resulted in almost unanimous approval of the idea. The meeting was attended by members of the Board of Control of the Art Students League and Stuart Kline, director of the school.

Mr. Gottfried who purchased the land from the local government under the N. Y. A. projects expired, said he would donate the buildings, rent free to the Art Students League. Among the interested Woodstock persons who attended the meeting were Town Supervisor Kenneth Wilson, John Egan, attorney for the town; John Smith, Arnold Brown, Bill West and Marion Ballard.

Members of the town board indicated they would grant approval of the project if it were a nonprofit enterprise. They were given assurance that it would be strictly non-profit.

Under terms of the original agreement between Mr. Gottfried and the Kingston Water Board the buildings were to be based on property by December 1 of this year. The Water Board's stand has not been changed but, of course, the matter will come up for discussion between the two parties.

The Arts Student League is the largest organization of fine art school in the country and in the past has given Woodstock many excellent intellectual programs. The organization is now prepared to handle much larger programs. The present plan calls for a three-year course but school directors indicated it might be extended to a five-year course. All persons desiring to study at the school will be drawn from the community.

Not Accepted

Backed, Nov. 16 (AP)—The House of Representatives today rejected a bill to establish a new federal agency to coordinate the activities of the various federal departments and agencies.

25 Degrees Recorded

The temperature in Kingston today was 25 degrees below zero, the lowest recorded since the winter of 1945-46.

Suspect Is Shot In Escape Attempt

Man Was Taking Goods, Sergeant Declares

New York, Nov. 16 (AP)—A theft suspect was shot in the right leg at 7:30 a. m. today when he attempted to escape after assaulting a police sergeant who arrested him in front of an A. and P. super-market on White Plains avenue between 225th and 226th streets, the Bronx, police of the White Plains avenue station, the Bronx, reported.

The wounded man, described by police as Thomas Owens, 30, of 457 11th avenue, the Bronx, and the police sergeant, Bernard Reilly of the White Plains avenue station, were removed to Fordham Hospital, the Bronx.

Hospital physicians found that Sergeant Reilly had suffered several fractured ribs and a fractured right thumb in the tussle with Owens on the sidewalk in front of the market.

Owens, whose condition was not serious, according to hospital physicians, was held on charges of petty larceny and felonious assault.

Sergeant Reilly reported that brother, Charles J. Burns of Rensselaer.

For several hours after the accident definite identification was lacking. Tentative identification was at first made through two letters addressed to Judge Burns. Subsequent identification was made positive by Albany Police Lt. William Mooney and Detective Francis Bulger who came to Kingston.

Judge Burns had been sitting in police court Thursday but told associates he would be in Kingston on business Friday and arranged for Recorder Robert J. Lallin to preside in his place yesterday.

Judge Burns was highly regarded in both public and private circles in Albany, where he was known among intimate friends as "Tanner," a nickname he acquired during his days as a basketball star.

His popularity was illustrated in the recent November 5 election when he was elected to the police court bench for a full term by a plurality of 25,965 votes, among the largest received by any Democratic candidate in Albany, even though he was near the tail end of the ticket on the ballot.

Born in Rensselaer, Judge Burns attended St. John's academy where his basketball career began. He continued as a basketball star at Georgetown University and Albany Law School where he graduated in 1923. For a time he coached the St. John's academy basketball team while captain of the law school team.

'Wingmen of Tomorrow' To Be Shown Here

"Wingmen of Tomorrow," a movie showing the work of Al Bennett in teaching youths to fly, will be shown at Reade's Theatre, uptown, starting Sunday and continuing through Monday and Tuesday.

It will be recalled that Al Bennett, who is credited with having instructed more boys in flying than any other man, was here last week at the opening of the Greene-Cluser Boy Scout financial campaign. At that time he gave a local boy his first flying instruction and he will return shortly to Kingston to give further instructions to two boys who received recognition as a result of the Scout drive. The recognition contest for work done during the financial drive was won by two local women. One turned her flying instruction course to one lad who has already been up with Mr. Bennett. In the ninth ward, the woman who won that award, turned her course of instruction over to the Scout Council and a ninth ward Scout was selected to receive the course, Mr. Bennett will be in Kingston shortly to give those instructions to the boys.

Movie and Supper
Planned Wednesday
At Stone Ridge Church

DR. IRWIN A. MOON

Vivid full-color scenes from the new motion picture "The God of Creation" will be shown at 8 p. m. Wednesday in the Marbletown Reformed Church, Stone Ridge, according to the Rev. Gerard J. Koster, pastor. The movie will follow the turkey supper to be served earlier in the evening starting at 5:30 o'clock. The public is invited.

Produced in Moody Institute of Science, West Coast department of Moody Bible Institute, by Irwin A. Moon, S.C.D., "The God of Creation" is the sound in a series of films. The first by Dr. Moon, "They Live Forever," had a large showing in all parts of the country.

In the opening section of film, the audience takes a trip to the sun by means of solar photographs taken through the giant 100-inch telescope of Mt. Wilson Observatory in southern California, and views complex gyrations of our own solar system.

Lapse-time photography is utilized to demonstrate the beauties of nature. The illusion of flowers buds developing into full blossoms in a few seconds is created through this time-compressing photo technique. The metamorphosis of a caterpillar through the various stages from worm to butterfly, and pollination of flowers are seen on the screen in full color.

Believed to be the first of their kind, are the natural-color pictures of photosynthesis, the mysterious food-manufacturing process resulting from the action of sunlight on green leaves. Through photomicrography, the audience peers into the microscopic world of a drop of water and observes the complexity of tiny organisms, enlarged more than a million times.

Good Taste
Today

By Emily Post

(Author of "Elegant" "Children Are People" etc.)

"ANKLETS" SEEM VERY INNOCENT

A young girl asks: "Are anklets in bad taste?" I am referring to the thin gold chains that one occasionally sees glimmering through nylons. I have such a chain given to me by a school friend, and mother thinks nice girls do not wear such jewelry. She even thinks such a chain worn around the ankle smacks of jungle savagery. She also thinks it is in some way immoral. But I can't understand why it should be considered more savage or immoral than a necklace or a bracelet. Will you write this answer in the papers?"

Although I can't possibly say that an ankle chain is in best taste, I think other details of fashion so much worse that an anklet is sweetly pretty by comparison. The intentionally exaggerated display of the undressed figure in fragmentary brassiere and hip-length shorts makes disapproval of anklets almost puzzling. But even so, in many communities an anklet would probably cause comment—some of which might be unpleasant.

Kiss the Bride at a Church Wedding?

Dear Mrs. Post: I would very much like to know whether it is considered against the rules of etiquette for a groom to kiss the bride at a church wedding, and if it is proper, then please explain at just what part of the service this kiss is given.

Answer: In the majority of churches the groom kisses the bride at the close of the ceremony, immediately following the clergyman's congratulations.

Two Hostesses Invited?

Dear Mrs. Post: Several weeks ago I was invited to a bridge party given by two hostesses, but I knew only one of them. Now that I am giving a party, must I invite both?

Answer: If you are giving a large general party, it would be courteous to include both. Otherwise, you would invite the you you know.

Do announcements require gifts? Send or Mrs. Post's latest "what to choose for a wedding Present and When to Send it," in care of Kingston Freeman, P.O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y., and enclose a 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Letter Has Devious Route to Freeman

Mrs. Rose Matthews of 107 Henry street tells a story of the vicissitudes of a letter that certainly ranks as a most peculiar one.

Mrs. Matthews said that on Thursday, at 12:30, she deposited in a mail box near her home a letter addressed to the Kingston Freeman, Freeman Square, Kingston, N. Y.

At 5 o'clock that same afternoon, Mrs. Matthews said, she received a telephone call from a Kingston man, whose name she did not obtain, saying that he had found in the pocket of an overcoat which bore had purchased in an Albany store that a day a letter which bore the return address of the Matthews' Radio Service, 107 Henry street.

Describing the envelope, it became apparent that it was the letter that Mrs. Matthews had mailed at 12:30 in Kingston, that same day. He agreed to mail the letter and once again start it on its way to the Freeman office.

The reader of the above will at once recognize the various peculiarities involved, outside of the coincidence that it should be a Kingston man that visited the Albany store and purchased that particular coat.

The letter was duly received at the Freeman office this afternoon.

'These Days'

By George E. Sokolsky

REVIVALS
Never has the theatre witnessed such a cavalcade of revivals. Rostand's "Cyrano," Ibsen's "John Gabriel Borkman," Shakespeare's "Henry VIII," Barrie's "What Every Woman Knows," "Oscar Wilde's "Lady Windermere's Fan," Shaw's "Androcles and the Lion," Webster's "The Duchess of Malfi," Synge's "The Playboy of the Western World" all in one season. And it is just a beginning.

But even more, there is a revival of grand theatre. The under-acted, dignified era is apparently no longer in style. Jose Ferrer's "Cyrano" is played in the classical manner in which acting is an art, not a job, and lines are spoken as though they were written not only to mean something but to sing the beauty of our language. Older men may have seen a better "Cyrano" but I have not and will be quite satisfied if I see no better.

This generation, which has confused the theatre with the movies and has been led by many of its dramatic critics to believe that speedy action and idiotic wisecracks and the use of four-lettered vulgarities make for theatrical success, has an opportunity to discover anew for itself why the drama so long in human history has held so firmly the affection, if not the adoration, of those who are truly appreciative of truth and beauty in the portrayed world.

The American Repertory Theatre's performance of "John Gabriel Borkman" is fantastically rich in the association of audience and stage in a common mood that sears the conscience and shifts all mental processes from the ephemeral to the eternal.

I pity those frightfully hurried folks who could not afford the peaceful leisure to permit Ibsen's words and the acting company's playing to enter their souls and to suffuse their beings with the consciousness that truth is beauty and beauty is not of time or place or manner.

For it is the greatness of Ibsen that he does not date. Like Shakespeare and Goethe, he is the poet of all time. I do not know how the management of the American Repertory Theatre came to select "John Gabriel Borkman," rather than a more popular "A Doll's House," or "Ghosts," but it proves a rare wisdom. For this war has produced a thousand Borkmans, men of elevated, even of inflated spirits whose dreams distance them in Nietzschean exaltation of personality, so overpowering, so positive, that they crushed the lives of those who stood in their paths, even those they loved—only to find themselves overwhelmed by the ambitions of their dreams. And always, knocking the death knock, is the next generation that, weary of the pressures of power, seeks happiness for its own sake.

So eternal is this theme in human existence that the miserably myopic see it only as a repetition of what has been said before, which is so true of all that is true, for instance, the Ten Commandments and the Sermon on the Mount. There is no novelty in truth. There is novelty in its portrayal and acceptance. Truth is commonplace because it is universal.

In this masterpiece of the theatre, performed with sympathy, understanding and a characterization not witnessed in these parts in a decade or more, the little man, the poet satiated fully and richly by the crumbs of happiness, Vilhelm Faldal, is given to us by Ernest Truex, with such fidelity and truth as to lift simplicity to grandeur. I have never seen better theatre.

This era of revivals satisfies two needs: One, again to see and listen to the great plays of all ages; and the other, the need for reformation of our theatre by example. The American theatre has been degenerating to a point where the musical and low comedy were standards of success. Of course, such plays as "Life With Father," and "Harvey," and "I Remember Mama" have had a deserved vogue. But these and similar exceptions failed to stimulate playwrighting of the highest order. In this era of revivals, it is to be hoped, will blossom the undoctored play, the writer who writes because he has something to tell the world, who realizes that the theatre is an art; that the play's the thing.

USE OF ADRENALIN

A comedian, Ben Welch, popular some years ago, in describing the effects of cocaine used to say "With one shot of cocaine into my arm, I think I've paid my rent."

That cocaine gives temporary courage to young and old law breakers is well known to police authorities. That cocaine relieves pain, and permits painless operations to be performed is of course, well known to all of us.

What many of us may not know is that Nature provides all of us with a secretion or juice that stimulates courageous behavior and boosts of physical strength. This juice is manufactured in the adrenal glands situated one above each kidney. When we are excited or even frightened an extra supply of this juice (adrenalin) is poured into the blood and enables us to put forth more effort. Most of us have seen how a few drops of adrenalin injected under the skin, relieves an attack of asthma and hay fever.

We can understand how an anxious, excitable emotional individual could be calling on his adrenal glands so much and so often that he could gradually tire them and he would become less able to put up a good fight against tears, anxieties, depressions.

Leaves From Boyle's Notebook

By HAL BOYLE

New York, Nov. 16 (AP)—So General Eisenhower is going to improve armychow—he says.

I wonder how his five-star program will fare when it collides with Otie, the moonstruck mess sergeant.

Otie—that's close enough to his real name—was a hill boy who was sentenced to the cookstove back in the early days in Tunisia. In those times many "bolos"—troublesome boys who went A.W.O.L., or curled up with a bottle too often—were punished by being promoted to "mess sergeant."

It was the cruellest penalty available. It was also hard on the rest of the outfit. They had to eat the morose culprit's culinary mistakes.

A good friend of mine, Otie originally was made a cook for misdeeds. There was always a mist rising in his mind, he couldn't tell one end of a gun from the other, and he certainly was the sloppiest-dressed and itchy soldier in Africa. I always thought his officers exiled him to the mess tent so they'd only have to see him three times a day.

Otie managed to get four thumbs in your morning oatmeal—he cooked it crisp instead of mushy—but the heat from the cookstoves did something to his sterile personality. He began to collect pinup girl pictures and write poetry.

There was one lieutenant Otie hated. Each morning the lieutenant would enter the trowzy tent and say: "Are you the mess sergeant?" "Yes, sir," Otie would reply—and cringe for the answer.

"Well," the lieutenant would say, glancing around distastefully, "this place certainly is a mess, sergeant."

Perhaps it was this daily jest which finally turned Otie to poetry for consolation. It was worse when the moon was full. Otie would stay up all night, grappling with the muse, and then indeed the powdered eggs at breakfast would taste like curled whale blubber.

Somebody made the error of telling Otie that Edwin Markham got $100,000 for "The Man With the Hoe." He became mercenary. He began slipping copies under my plate, thinking I probably knew somebody who wanted to invest $100,000 for a quick profit.

One poem, I recall, went something like this: "Roses are red, Violets are blue, Your eyes are brown, And mine, too!" Otie would say and spit out a stream of tobacco juice in modest confusion. And there was one that went roughly: "My feet are in the mud of Flanders, But dear, my heart still wanders Back across all those empty ocean miles and miles To where your sweet face smiles and smiles and smiles."

Otie kind of expected extra pay for the long lines. Although his verse looked like it had been written with a skilful instead of a pencil, I encouraged Otie because—in return for my appreciation—he would smuggle me cans of peaches for a pre-baked snack. And canned peaches were something the colonels could not get.

'At Century's Turn'

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

The Board of Trade at its meeting on August 14, 1906, announced that the new Columbia Shirt Co. would locate in Kingston, and had awarded the contract for the erection of a factory on O'Neil street.

The factory located later in the city, and was in operation for a number of years. In late years it has housed the Craft Super Market.

In looking back through the vista of the years I wonder how many readers recall the old foot bridge on East Strand that was erected many years ago by the old Newark Lime and Cement Co.

Under the foot bridge ran a single track for the cement cars that carried carloads of cement to the slip in the Rondout creek where the cement was unloaded into cement barges for consignment to the New York city market.

This old bridge carried the pedestrian up over the tracks but did not extend over the roadway, as I recall it. The old bridge, which was of wooden construction, was finally taken down in 1906.

One of Kingston's leading business men died September 16, 1906, in his home, "Knoll Lawn," on Broadway, which now houses the convent of St. Anne. The man was Alva S. Staples, aged 74 years.

Mr. Staples was born in Albany on April 25, 1832, and became a resident of Kingston when eight years of age.

Early in life Mr. Staples with John R. Stebbins, bought the general merchandise business of George North, conducting it for a number of years under the firm name of Stebbins and Staples until 1856 when Mr. Staples became sole owner.

The store was then located opposite the Mansion House on lower Broadway. In 1860 the business was removed to the building at the intersection of Hasbrouck avenue and Ferry street, when a wholesale flour, feed and grain business was established.

In 1893 the business was removed to the building at Hasbrouck avenue and Mill street, known as the Arcade Mills.

Mr. Staples was also engaged in the brick business with a large yard near East Kingston. He served as president of the Rondout Savings Bank, and for 30 years was a director of the old First National Bank. He also served as a director of the Ulster and Delaware railroad.

Mr. Staples over a long period of time was active in the Rondout Presbyterian Church. For many years he was a member of Rondout Lodge of Masons.

Another well known man who died September 19, 1906, was George D. Boughton, widely known druggist. Mr. Boughton who resided on Henry street, was 55 years old at the time of his death.

MORE EMPLOYEES VOTE AGAINST UNIONIZING

It would be jumping at a conclusion to say that there is a wide scale reaction in the ranks of labor against union abuses, but still there is considerable evidence of such a rebellion.

Probably 75 per cent of the firms unionized did not want unions in the first place; the unfairness of that union A-bomb, the Wagner Act, threw thousands of minority elections into the union hat because, under the labor board rules, a majority of employees of a firm is not required but only a majority of those voting. New Deal propaganda experts, Wagner and union organizers knew very well that many an anti-union man would not get mixed up with what he considered union dirty work even to the extent of voting. It is now easy to see that most of those who refuse to vote are against organizing, or at least, want only a company union in which they can have a voice.

The Wagner act just about put the finish to the democratic company union, by requiring that all bargaining be done through the union's agents—men usually not employed by the firm, or by any firm, but simply living off the dues they can get from working people by whooping up their inflammatory propaganda.

An election at Northrop Aircraft, Inc. in October whipped the C.I.O. by a decisive majority—69.3 of all voting employees turning thumbs down on the union, 30.7 voting for it.

This was the third election in 18 months, despite the fact that these people had voted twice before against unionizing. An employee of Northrop told me there was considerable feeling in the plant that the labor relations board was playing ball with the C.I.O., harassing them in an effort to throw them to that union. He said this was one reason why the majority against unionizing increased with each successive election.

In the first Northrop election, in April, 1945, the anti-union block won by 50.4 to 49.2. In the second, in December, they voted 61.1 against, 38.9 for unionizing. A small per cent in each of these elections went for the A.F.L.

But most of the pro-union votes were for the C.I.O.

In the third election, in October, its support having dropped to 30.7, as previously indicated. One reason this election went so strongly against unionism was the gaining rights to a union was 88 per cent of all eligible employees voted.

I believe if reliable statistics were available they would show a general trend toward rejection of the union. I base this assumption on the wide scale public reaction toward government encroachment on the rights of the individual, on the tremendous loss of members by C.I.O. unions since V.E. Day, on a statement by the head of the C.I.O.-P.A.C. that his machine was able to bleed workers for only $175,000 political fund (toward a $6,000,000 goal), and the increasing number of union members writing me expressing bitterness against regimentation.

Also I think of several instances in greater Los Angeles recently where small firms have cast decisive votes against unionizing—one of them by 78 to two, another by 28 to two, and a third by nine to two.

The principal complaint in my mail is against strikes, but there is a general dislike for the regimentation which unions have accomplished. A free economy means freedom of the worker to bargain with his employer. We grant him even the right to organize and bargain collectively with the employer.

But the principle of such collective bargaining is based on the assumption that the employee of a given firm will be free to bargain with their own employer—not that they will completely turn over their rights to an outsider, a professional who must hold them in his hand by whipping up a frenzy of propaganda against management and who in turn shares in the dues and assessments and spends the money however he chooses.

The outcry is against this deep-seated, basic violation of Anglo-Saxon rights and therefore it is not likely to be laughed off. It is too soon to say how strong is the surge. Probably it can not go far until Congress revamps the labor laws to release management, the public and employees alike from the unfair regimentation gained under the New Deal.

Schenley's Heaviest Advertising Campaign

New York—Although allocation of alcoholic beverage stocks to distributors necessarily is being continued in order to balance supply and demand as nearly as possible, the largest advertising campaign in the history of the industry has been launched for Schenley Reserve whiskey. It is announced by William Bijur, Schenley Distillers Corporation's national advertising manager for this brand.

In releasing the new campaign, Bijur said that the swing in national market trends is unmistakably toward a buyers' market, even though there are still widespread shortages in a number of fields. But insofar as advertising is concerned, Bijur pointed out, the strategic time to build consumer preferences is now, and not when the pace of normal production has been reached.

The new Schenley Reserve advertising campaign is built around "Sunny," a new animated cartoon-type rooster personality. "Sunny" is described by Bijur as an irrepressibly friendly, versatile and attention-attracting personality, which has an excellent chance, considering the heavy promotion support, of becoming the best known animated trade character in advertising.

The new campaign will appear in newspapers in every major market across the country.

SHOKAN

Shokan, Nov. 16—George Fisher has been spending a few days at his summer home, the former Earl North place on the mountain road. Bear tracks were found in the back yard of Murray Slavin's home one morning recently. The bear had been pawing over the contents of an incinerator near the house. Bruin may not have come far on his nocturnal raid as the Slavin place is near woodlands which extend northward for many miles.

John Heiser, well known Ashokan resident, is reported as being in poor health. Joseph Ogden, who served with the Marine Corps in the Pacific war theatre, has bought the Winne woodlot of 26 acres at Ashokan. Mr. Ogden is making his home at the residence of his sister, Mrs. Lester Lawrence, for the time being.

Junior Lukacs, small son of Mr. and Mrs. Emory Lukacs, underwent an operation for appendicitis at a Kingston hospital last week.

A death of November 17, 1912, was that of Christopher A. Warren, 74, whose farm home was near Tonche Mountain and the Olive-Hurley town line. Mr. Warren, a member of the Olive Branch M. E. Church, had been ailing for several years as the result of a fall from his haymow. He was survived by his wife, the former Sarah Pelham of Kingston and four children, Frank Warren of Route 28 is a son.

Chester Lyons has sold his Ashokan residence property to city people. The former county treasurer and his family expect to remove to Kingston where they own property. The Lyons house, one of the largest in this section, was built by the late Abner Winne in late waterworks construction years.

Alva Buley, Jr., of Kingston is having excavation made for the cellar of his new home at the junction of the Tonche and Ashokan mountain roads. This will be a stone house with modern improvements.

William Loos, accompanied by his friend, Lawrence Homan, came up from Long Island Tuesday to do some hunting. "Bill," who in September put up the framework of his new house on the Ridge road, came here equipped with a Mauser rifle and special hunting license and then supplemented these accessories by joining the local Rod and Gun Club. Mr. Loos says the Republican vote in his section of Queens county November 5 was really something to brag about.

Shokan, Nov. 13—Mrs. William Mulligan of New York is visiting her mother, Mrs. C. G. Fuller of the north reservoir boulevard. Mrs. Murray Slavin of the mountain road is recovering from illness.

Mrs. Edward West of Allaben is teaching 21 pupils at the Ashokan school.

Mrs. Raymond Cruthers, a summer resident of Brodhead, called on friends here recently.

The Rod and Gun Club has posted most of the wild land in northeast Olive. Practically all of the woods along the Ridge Road are now in the restricted class.

November 13, 1877, George H. Chase of Hurley and Bertha Moe of Olive were married in the Shokan M. E. Church by the Rev. Thomas H. Bond. Witnesses to the nuptials were Emeline Winchell and Eliza Bond, both of Shokan.

Felix Sierra has been engaged in wiring the new post office building for electricity. The attractive one and a half story building is located on the north side of Route 28, a few yards east of Hogsback, where the old DuBois tavern stood a hundred years ago.

Francis Sharwell, Y.M.C.A. secretary of Norfolk, Va., has been spending a few days with Mrs. Sharwell at the home of the latter's mother, Mrs. Nelson Bell. The scarlet berries of the mountain ash are a pleasing sight here and there in the twin villages. There is a fine bush at the corner store and several at Ashokan, notably those in the yard of Mrs. Ezra Green whose brother, the late Clara Barnes, brought the somewhat rare shrub here from the wilds of Denning.

Charles Personneus, who received his discharge from the army several weeks ago, and wife are making their home in part of the May Personneus house on Route 28. "Charlie" is now caretaker of the Peter Mastrota property here. Mr. Mastrota, a furrier, in New York, bought the place last summer and since that time has built a cottage and made a number of other improvements. The main house was built by the late Aulden Van Benschoten, father of Aulden Van Benschoten, of Mt. Marion, about 30 years ago. Shokan, Nov. 15, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Elmendorf, accompanied by Mrs. John Adels, motored to Pittsfield and spent the week-end with relatives.

Mrs. Paul Hahn of Route 28 is reported as getting along well following an operation at a Kingston hospital last week. Mrs. Eugene McCafferty, a near neighbor of Mrs. Hahn, also is a hospital patient.

Elmer Bush, hustling Ashokan farmer and teamster, has built a large addition onto the west side of his barn. Mr. Bush had to stack some of his hay this year.

The rock oak blight continues to take a heavy toll of trees in the woods north of Shokan. This is too bad as there are probably more of this species here than all other good green fuelwood put together. The plague, unlike the chestnut blight, which made its 100 per cent killing in one grand sweep, strikes here and there, big trees and small ones, so that often they are not noticed until too dozy for firewood.

A local real estate transfer of Nov. 16, 1888, was that of a piece of property from Albert Elmendorf to Zedec Pratt Boice. Mr. Elmendorf, father of Mrs. Boice, resided for many years at Olive, where he was one of four farmers of the surname who also operated a waterpower sawmill on their places. His farmhouse stood along the old Plank Road near the present Ashokan railroad station and his 93 acres extended up the mountain road and west to the Ridge Road. Later, he and Mrs. (Jenima Winne) Elmendorf bought the Levi Crispell stone house on the west side of Esopus on the cross-out saw these days.

Mrs. Lucia Fromer of Kingston. James Rutherford with his team has been plowing for Emory Lukacs at the latter's place along the East Butternutkill. The ground will be used for a garden and playground in connection with the Lukacs children's summer school.

Buddy and Billy Jackson, local K.H.S. students, make a fast team on the cross-out saw these days. Their homework includes sawing and piling two cords of heavy oak wood and the lads sure make the big saw sing sweet and loud.

Mrs. John Rainey is spending some time with her relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Gordon, at Brown's.

Improvements at the John Adels place include a new driveway, paved with field stone.

Mrs. Robert Secor is in fairly good health this fall. Mrs. Secor, one of the few remaining Civil War pensioners in Ulster county, was 95 years old last January 7.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Carlson and son, Harold of Brooklyn, spent the week-end with Mrs. Carlson's father, Henry Gebbelein, and uncle, Peter Gebbelein. Mr. Carlson has received word that his mother is seriously ill in Sweden.

Alva Buley, Sr. and Jerry Phillips of the Tonche Mountain neighborhood, are doing a good business with their heavy trucks. Mr. Buley, with Ray Cudney as teamster, also finds plenty of work for his horses at the village.

Arthur Hansen, Jr., is assisting his father at the Hansen magneto plant in the village.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

Had Enough
New York, Nov. 16 (P. A. C.)—A Columbia University assistant librarian has threatened to quit. The reason: Frogs.

For the past two weeks the university's psychology library has been invaded by the croakers who had apparently escaped through an open pipe from the zoology laboratory on the floor above.

The last straw for the assistant librarian came when she reached for a book on "experimental psychology" and a frog leaped at her.

Husband Gets the Bird
Aurora, Ill., Nov. 16 (P. A. C.)—Pewonka, returning from a hunting trip without a pheasant, was greeted by his wife who was waiting to give him the bird she got without firing a shot or leaving her backyard.

Mrs. Pewonka explained to the empty-headed hunter that she found the pheasant in the backyard. She said the bird apparently had taken refuge there after being wounded by a hunter in a nearby orchard.

Cash in Snow Bank
Grand Island, Neb., Nov. 16 (P. A. C.)—Policeman Earl Roseberry and Donald S. ... to the advice that no one ever does anything about a snow bank.

They explained a small wagon used to collect coins from parking meters and struck a bump and spilled coins into the snow drifts. They needed the snow to facilitate the search for the coins.

Bear Story
Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 16 (P. A. C.)—The three bears which had been doomed to become bearbangers during the meat shortage have been offered to two cities for $100,000.

Robert Sanderson has offered papa, mama and baby bear to Los Angeles and Omaha, Neb. He gave up plans to slaughter the bears because of pleas from school children and other animal lovers.

But he said he cannot continue to keep the bears because of the increased cost of food.

Many camels can carry a load of 400 pounds 25 to 30 miles a day for eight days without water.

The War Department has increased a pay note into its recruiting campaign by announcing that two-year volunteers may now earn directly into any one of six famous divisions engaged in occupation duties in Japan and Korea. If, therefore, recruits have been unable to make such a specific choice.

There are two reasons for this move, according to Major General Edward F. Weir, the adjutant general. One is to increase the number of volunteers of the Pacific area.

General Weir said the offer was limited to two-year volunteers, since men who enlist for any shorter period are not given choice of service.

There are many advantages to duty in Japan and Korea the adjutant general pointed out. These include: 20 per cent increase in base pay (because of overseas service); the opportunity to pick a specific division and country, which is not otherwise available; the opportunity to travel in the Orient; unexcelled recreational and sports programs; a chance to obtain further education and training in overseas technical schools.

New Candidates
Projected Into Leadership Fight

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST

Washington, Nov. 16 (AP)—Two new candidates, one from each party, were projected into the leadership battle over majority and minority flood leaderships in the House.

Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois became the fourth midwesterner mentioned as a possible starter in the Republican contest, while disclosure that John E. Rankin of Mississippi may enter on the minority side threatened a tug of war between northern and southern Democrats.

Dirksen's announced rivals are Charles A. Halleck of Indiana and Thomas Jenkins of Ohio. Another Ohioan, Clarence Brown, says he is "available." The winner will succeed Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, who steps up to the speakership.

Disclosure that Rankin is eyeing the Democratic leadership led to renewal of demands by some Democrats that Sam Rayburn of Texas reconsider his planned renouncement of the top minority spot.

As speaker of the House under Democratic domination, Rayburn normally would become minority floor leader under a Republican-controlled House. He already has announced that he does not want the job.

The present Democratic floor leader, Rep. John W. McCormack of Massachusetts, who is next in line to Rayburn, is unsatisfactory to a large bloc of Southerners headed by Rankin. But Rankin's doings as a leading member of the anti-American activities committee have put him in disfavor with party colleagues from other sections.

Mentioned most frequently as a possible compromise candidate, in the event Rayburn refuses to reconsider and a north-south row develops is Rep. Francis E. Walter of Pennsylvania.

The final decision on both party leaderships will be made at party caucuses to be held before the new Congress convenes.

C.C.N.Y. Councils
10,000th Veteran

The City College of New York Vocational Advancement Unit interviewed today its ten thousandth veteran at Army Hall, 1560 Amsterdam avenue, New York city, according to a report submitted by its director, Dr. Louis Long, the college president, Dr. Harry N. Wright.

Since the opening of the C.C.N.Y. unit's counseling offices and testing laboratories in June, 1944, as the first college unit, over 10,000 veterans were counseled regarding their vocational training objectives under the provisions of Public Laws 16 and 348.

The Veterans Administration has maintained at City College its own staff of vocational advisors, training officers, and a physician as medical consultant to serve the veterans who have been interviewed, tested, and appraised by the C.C.N.Y. vocational advancement unit.

The veterans who have sought either vocational guidance under Public Law 348 or vocational rehabilitation as disabled veterans under Public Law 16 presented a wide variety of problems for careful and proper consideration and testing at the unit.

The extent and severity of physical impairment, the lack of pre-service employment and residual skills, the loss of will to achieve due to combat and service conditions, and the sociological factors which militate against the full and free choice of a vocation by the veteran, all combine to render vocational counseling of the veterans a challenging problem for the staff members of the unit.

The staff members realize that the selection of the vocational objective by the veteran, in effect, involves not only the choice of an economic and work environment but also the choice of a career and the position of the veteran in society.

Army Will Use
Parachutes to Get Back Instruments

White Sands, N. M., Nov. 16 (AP)—The Army, in a continuing series of experiments with rebuilt Nazi V-2 rockets, is getting ready to try out parachutes as a means of recovering instruments fired to hitherto unexplored heights above the earth.

Lt. Col. Harold R. Turner, White Sands proving ground commander, said today that first use of parachutes for this purpose is planned for one of the next two tests here—either Nov. 21 or Dec. 17.

"In the 14 rocket tests to date," he reported, "we have not tried to use parachutes at high altitudes because previous information from German reports indicated they could not withstand the high temperatures generated on reentering the earth's atmosphere."

Research based on this information, Turner said, has brought new developments leading to hope that parachutes now may be employed successfully.

His disclosure was made in comment on unofficial reports that poor recovery of instruments has resulted from the crash of expended rockets, tending to minimize the scientific knowledge gained.

"That is not true," Turner said. "The yield has been exceptionally high to date."

He explained that objectives of the Ordnance department's guided missile program were twofold, one aim being to determine precisely what happens in operation of the rocket itself, and the other directed toward upper air exploration.

"Upper air" means altitudes above 50,000 feet, Turner said, and new information has been obtained from all three tests in which the rocket failed to climb that high. A 104-mile record was achieved in one launching last summer.

Except for one piece of equipment still being sought from an Oct. 24 test, recovery has been 100 percent, he said.

Proposal for Improving
Rural Education

Albany—A proposal for improving rural education through the establishment of a new type of intermediate district will be considered at a conference of the Board of Regents of the University of the State of New York today.

The proposal, which was developed by the New York State Council on Rural Education on the afternoon of November 14 in the State Education Building at Albany, the meeting is being held at the invitation of the Regents.

The Council on Rural Education was formed in November 1943 by representatives of 16 state-wide educational and farm organizations, the majority of the members being farm representatives. Its purpose is to improve the educational opportunities for farm boys and girls.

As the result of studies made in 12 areas of the state by its research staff, the Council on Rural Education has recommended the formation of a new intermediate district—larger, stronger financially and with more responsibility than the present supervisory district set up in 1910.

This proposal was discussed at a special conference on rural education in Albany held at the time of the Regents Convocation. Regent Edward R. Eastman of Ithaca was formerly president of the Council on Rural Education.

The present is Edward S. Foster of Ithaca. Claude L. Kulp, superintendent of schools at Ithaca, is chairman of the executive committee. Dr. J. Cayce Morrison, assistant commissioner for research of the State Education Department is director of research studies for the council.

Speaking at the recent conference, Commissioner of Education Francis T. Spaulding said: "The intermediate district study looks in the direction of a plan by which our rural school systems may pool their resources to provide for rural boys and girls educational services more nearly comparable with those of urban schools than any rural schools can now offer independently."

From the conference which has taken place here today and from a continuation of the thinking and planning and acting together to which the council has been devoting itself, I believe that we can expect advances in rural education which have followed the pioneer work done 28 years ago by the Committee of Twenty.

Demonstration Is Staged

Cairo, Nov. 16 (AP)—Thirty thousand students staged an anti-government, anti-British demonstration today at Faid El Lami, cheering a speaker who said the "people already have weapons and are waiting for leadership to start a revolution against capitalism and British domination."

Mustafa Nour, student leader, told demonstrators who forced their way into the university area that they had the school's opening day that "Russia will support Egypt's case, as it has already expressed sympathy for Egypt's demands for education of British troops and units of the Nile valley. We have no doubt but that the British and France will be on our side," he added.

Failing Health
May Keep Bilbo
From Showdown

By FRANCIS J. KELLY

Washington, Nov. 16 (AP)—Republican moves to challenge Senator Theodore G. Bilbo (D-Miss) at the door of the Senate Jan. 3 may go for naught. His physical condition may prevent his appearance.

This was learned today from an associate of Bilbo as the Senate campaign investigating committee assembled to study complaints that the Mississippi tried to intimidate Negroes from voting in last summer's Democratic primary. Bilbo won election to a third term in the contest.

A Democratic member of the committee conceded in advance that an open hearing in Bilbo's home state is all but certain. He said the Republicans seem "hell-bent for a hearing" and that the charges may as well be aired.

Bilbo, 69 years old, spent some time recently in a New Orleans hospital with a mouth ailment which was said to have resulted from friction of a denture. More recently, he was injured slightly in an automobile accident near his home at Poplarville, Miss.

A friend here said he had strong doubts that Bilbo would be present for the convening of the new Senate.

This would upset Republican proposals to challenge his right to the seat and to ask him to step aside until the Senate voted on the question.

The Republican Senate steering committee has given so much thought to the matter that it has appointed a sub-committee—Senators Charles McNary and Hickman (R-La.)—to develop strategy. Both Senators are members of the campaign investigating committee also.

Plans Forwarded for Roosevelt Hospital

Colonel William F. Heavey, New York District Engineer of the Corps of Engineers, 120 Wall street, New York city, announced today that plans and specifications have been forwarded to a selected list of general building construction, plumbing, heating, electrical and heavy construction contractors for the construction of the 1,984 bed Franklin Delano Roosevelt Hospital for neurophysiatric veterans in Crugers Park, Peckskill, New York. The hospital will be constructed under the direction of the Corps of Engineers.

The site is approximately two miles south of Peckskill, New York between State Highway No. 9 and the Hudson river and is comprised of about 385 acres. The tract comprises about 250 acres belonging to Westchester county and the adjoining tract known as the Guinzburg property.

The project consists of 32 buildings, with all required exterior utilities, water, gas, electric, sewer, steam, grading, drainage and landscaping. Featured among the buildings will be the main hospital, eight continued acute and semi-acute treatment buildings, chapel, gymnasium, quarters for nurses and attendants, apartment buildings for resident doctors, infirmary, recreational and occupational therapy buildings, boiler house, laundry, storehouse and other structures.

The structures vary in size, and range from 1 to 4 stories in height. Construction will be fireproof, with reinforced concrete and steel framing, brick walls, built up and sloping slate roofs.

Bids will be received on December 23, at 2 p. m. The time for completion of this project will be 900 calendar days from the date of the awarding of the contract. Work is expected to be commenced the first part of spring, 1947. Plans and specifications can be reviewed at the New York District Engineer's office.

Teachers Ask New
Pay Minimums

per cent of the teachers received less than $2,000.

The Teachers' Salary Conference of New York city, which claimed it represented Manhattan's 30,000 teachers asked a minimum starting salary of $2,700 for them and requested that a salary increase of $450 per teacher be earmarked from state aid. The conference urged that state aid be doubled.

New York city speakers told of teachers working as longshoremen, waiters and waitresses to piece out their income; of 2,000 teachers resigning or retiring yearly; and of 546 "uncovered" classes, without teachers, at the end of September.

A member of the city's board of examiners, Dr. William Hanning, said the attempts to fill vacancies "is like pouring water into a sieve," adding that the "calibre of applicants, generally speaking, is at a low ebb."

Dr. Arvie Eldred, executive secretary of the State Teachers Association, was questioned by Speaker Oswald D. Heck about "stories that some communities have not used the funds for educational purposes."

"I'm afraid that's true," Eldred replied. Heck asked if the Association could give the committee the names of the cities, and Eldred said yes.

Miss Mary A. Sheehan of Rochester, first vice president of the Teachers Association, asked a $2,400 minimum in starting salaries with eight annual increments of $150.

Dissenting notes in the chorus for immediate state assistance came from Walter O. Howe, executive vice-president of the Citizen Public Expenditure Survey; Edwin S. Brown, of the Commerce and Industry Association of New York; and Abnett Pulliam, Governmental Research, Inc.

Howe said his organization recommended that "salary adjustments be made on the basis of facts, and that funds for them first be sought by savings within local school systems."

Brown opposed mandatory minimum salary rates and urged continuance of state aid by its present system, "under which a large degree of home rule is granted to the municipal school authorities."

Salaries in New York city, he declared, "are not out of line with the present cost of living."

Pulliam urged a scientific study to determine "that full benefits are received from money devoted to education."

James V. King, regional director of the C.I.O. United Public Workers of America, filed petitions asking a special legislative session for action on a statewide $2,500 minimum salary and a $1,000 general increase for New York city. He said the petitions bore about 25,000 signatures.

The committee was established in 1945 by Dewey to study revision of the Friedman Formula by which state financial aid for local education is determined.

Members are Heck, Feinberg, State Education Commissioner Francis T. Spaulding, State Budget Director John E. Burton, and Charles D. Breitler, counsel for the governor.
